

Configure a login screen message

Published: 2025-02-11

You can add a custom message to the login screen to display graphics and logos and to convey information to users such as password requirements, policy statements, support links, or maintenance announcements.

Here are some considerations about displaying a custom login screen message:

- You must have System and Access Administration user privileges.
  - The login screen message only applies to the console or sensor on which the message is configured.
  - The login screen message supports text and graphics in Markdown syntax, which is a markup language that converts plain text into HTML.
